Skyline Comedy logs free laughs for Landscaping, Forestry Employees

FOX CITIES, WI – Dec. 1, 2009—Skyline Comedy Café blueprints reveal its next Worry-Free Wednesdays segment is a month-long tribute to Landscaping and Forestry Employees.

Beginning Dec. 2, employees in this field and their spouses/significant others receive complimentary general admission into any Wednesday 8 p.m. performance. (Includes Park and Rec. experts; landscape designers, planners, garden professionals; construction crews; florists, etc.) The effort is part of Skyline's "Worry-Free Wednesdays" program, which aims to recognize the impact made by employees in various career niches with a mid-week break from the grind. It coincides with a festive December lineup parading onstage at "Wisconsin's Premier Place to see live stand-up comedy"™.

Worry-Free Wednesdays features free admission for employees in a different industry each month, from teachers and military members to hospitality and veterinary medicine employees. Already, hundreds of regional residents have taken advantage of the program, which includes free admission Wednesday to these side-splitting December headliners:

- Cash Levy: (FOX, NBC, Comedy Central; Dec. 2 – 5)
- Dwayne Perkins: (One of Rolling Stone's "Top 5 Comics to Watch," seen on "Late Night with Conan O'Brien," "Last Comic Standing" and "The Jay Leno Show": Dec. 9 – 12)
- Graham Elwood: (Comedy Central's "The Sarah Silverman Program," CBS's "The Late, Late Show," USO Tours; Dec. 16 – 19)
- Rob Brackenridge: (Comedy Central, Bob and Tom Radio Show; Dec. 23 and 26)
- PJ Walsh: (Seattle International Comedy Competition, HBO's "U.S. Comedy Arts Festival,"; Dec. 30 – Jan. 2)

Reservations are always required. In December, Landscaping/Forestry employees will need to show a form of employment identification at check-in the night of the show. Worry-Free Wednesdays includes admission into general seating. A two-beverage minimum applies to all Skyline Comedy guests. To reserve seats and for more information, contact the Box Office during normal business hours at (920) 734-JOKE (5653).
